Wait here, is what she said I dont have the time to talk now, Dont call, i have friends now she said i wont need you anymore

Take my heart, in your hands and place it on your sleeve so that no one can reach me,
Your too late, for any change i dont owe you anything, go ahead, hold your breath, like always ive got nothing left

just like the sound of your voice go back to the night
she said goodbye,
outside dead winter in January with the cold air falling on our one very last kiss with our eyes locked close together i wish the moment could last forever

my starlit sky, begins to fall and i walk away still standing tall my head held high, my eyes half close as i start my car to head back home

she said goodbye,

so many cold nights but without a doubt that one winter night will still stand out so grab my thoughts carry on as i fall asleep and ill wake up holding her in a careless dream and as days go by slowly turn to years as i write the final song for only you to here and i know in my mind that without a doubt that the best thing for me is to forget about those nights by the fire without a care well you can swing by yourself because i wont be there
