It was a long time coming but plain to see
When I held his shaking hand, he couldn't look at me
He said something about losing, losing the will to go on He looked off into the distance, I knew his mind had gone

He lights a candle, it has a soft kind of glow
He's scared of the dark but he won't let nobody know Cos when the midnight demons are creeping through the night
He knows they'll get to him when he's run out of fight

Was it trying to get it right that made it wrong
Or was it just a road that went on way too long
Too long, too long, too long

He searches for words, but the words disappear
He talks so quietly, you move closer to hear He's looking for answers but you don't know what to say
Just help him through the night into another day

He's falling over the edge of the abyss
Holding on and reaching out and hoping he won't miss
I say "Grab a hold of something, something beautiful and true
Someday the world is going to smile for you"

Was it trying to get it right that made it wrong
Or was it just a road that went on way too long
Too long, too long, too long
