We send our postcars saying wish you were here.
Then made love under the portsmouth peer.

I got it wrong and you started to cry.
I said I loved you but it was a lie.

You were gentle and I was rough,
I was talking big and acting tough.
Now I've forgotten your name, it was so long ago,
When we were two young kids ...
no place to go €; no place to go €;

We lost touch, I had the world to see.
I didn't think of you, did you think of me?
When you fell in love, was he good and kind
Like I should've been for your first time?

I should've got you a ring
From the trinket store
And drawn a heart with an arrow
On the portsmouth wall.

Maybe got you a flower to wave in your hair.
I should have done something that was tender
To show that I care €; to show that I care.

That's the way life sometimes goes.
How thing can change nobody knows.

For what it's worth and come what may,
I'm feeling bad when I think of that day.
Young love should be pure and true,
I should have been so good for you!

Do you remember the kid who got it all wrong?
Well that kid's now a man and he's writing this song.
I'm composing these words, trying to tell you somehow,
I didn't love you then - but I love you now €;
I love you now!

That's the way life sometimes goes.
How thing can change nobody knows.
Nobody knows ... nobody knows ...
How things can change ... nobody knows ...
