"Why You Why Now"

Summertime is far from us.
Red hands and dry cold freeze our heads.
You fight against the walls that hold you.
You say you're brave,
but I know you're scared.
Don't try to tell me your truth,
my faith is not up to you.
Let me dance without my brain.
Let me feel there's blood in my veins.
Don't try to bewitch me with your parables.
My faith is not up to you, up to you.
I'll try not to know who you are.
My faith is not up to you.
So, why you why now, why?
