So make this cut the deepest, knowing that you're better off alone. Just let me get this off my chest, its even harder to do when you've taken my breath. And with the way you look tonight, I'll sit here with nothing better to write. I guess the strongest wins here, I guess you no longer live here. In this place where trees can't help you breathe, I'll be with you until you decide to leave. Its so quiet, lets not break this, and our silence is the greatest. When our time runs out and I'm by myself, I'll still call your name and make this clear. That I'm thinking about what you're thinking about. I feel that we're sometimes the same. So just runaway. I feel that we're the same.
