As hard as this will come to be, I'll forget everything that you've told me. And your smile slips away. So carve this whole right through my chest. I've had your worst. Now is this your best? The writing on your wall has faded. Its time for this to fall apart. Why do I find it so hard to breathe at times like these? Why do I make things harder for myself? Let's hope you'll see. And If I could just make it through the day, I swear I'd take you with me. If I can't count on you, then why am I alive? Apologies accepted. That's all you're here for... to mark my words.
