Have you seen my soul? I went missing around here many years ago
Somewhere on this lonesome road in a city overgrown and a population dwindling I searched above and below and found a world so cold and a million hearts pretending I took a thousand different roads just to find the same result
And still this search is pending

So don't act like a friend when you're nothing but a foe
Give me back my innocence that you stole so long ago

Cause' I need to find a fine line where the ocean and the sky collide

Did you see my soul? I've been looking in this place for 15 years or so I traced the footprints down the road just to find the same result
And still this search is pending

You've been acting like a friend when you're nothing but a foe
I'm not fooled by your grin; I can see your broken soul I've been trying to make sense of the deceptive lies you told
Give me back my innocence that you stole so long ago

Cause' I need to find a fine line where the ocean and
the sky collide
Where the flowers never die, and nothing but blue skies fall on me

I can't help but follow the beaming rays of the sun
