Rachael Yamagata
"Known for Years"

Visit "Known for Years" on MotoLyrics.com

I'm so good at running away
You'd think I'd grown up on a train
And you're so good at leading them on Who am I to bring you down?
I wonder, why I'm still hanging around
Was it the sound?

'Cause I've known for years that we'd get here
And I can't make believe that we're not seeing the same thing
And I've known for years that we'd get here
And it'd be a shame to make believe, it's better to leave

And it's so cruel, the way I recall
I ran out of lies to take it all [Incomprehensible] to whether I am just afraid?
But who are they to stand in my way?
I wonder if I just soldier the crown
Was it the sound?

'Cause I've known for years that we'd get here
And I can't make believe that we're not seeing the
same thing
'Cause I've known for years that we'd get here
And it'd be a shame to make believe

It'd be a shame to make believe, it's better to leave
It'd be a shame to make believe, it's better to leave, yeah
It'd be a shame to make believe, it's better
Better, better, better to leave

'Cause I've known for years that we'd get here
And I can't make believe that we're not seeing the
same thing
'Cause I've known for years that we'd get here
And it'd be a shame, it'd be a shame, shame It'd be a shame to make believe, it'd be a shame to make believe
Oh, it's better to leave

Visit Rachael Yamagata page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.