Hang your coat up by the light
It's cold as loneliness outside
And it's too hard to find the words tonight, to say goodbye
My feet are heavy on the ground
But my heart is somewhere else
And love's no guarantee, but I can't let you go, away from me

Hanging on the time, hoping for another day
But, I won't smile again, without you
Where is yesterday, where are all those plans we made
Why you'd you have to go, so far away
Sleep and dream tonight
You are gone before the light

I close my eyes enough to dream
I feel you closer than my skin
But your slipping from my mind, again
Days lost

This room's too dark see, why do you have to go, away
from me

Hanging on the time, hoping for another day
But, I won't smile again, without you
Where is yesterday, where are all those plans we made
Why you'd you have to go, so far away
Sleep and dream tonight
You are gone before the light
