"To The Underworld"

to the underworld i4m going down step into the ground into the breath from the gutter of the underworld what will be i don4t know and i don4t care if somebody4s asking me but i never will go back to the places where i once used to be i don4t care who you were cause we never stay the same every moment4s a change in the complicated game i don4t care where you4ve been, everybody4s astray like a homeless bird in the stormy bay now i4m on my way, from the other side direction unknown which is always what you can4t understand vague vision in front as the past is calling you never ever turn around, better wait till the blizzard comes to an end i don4t care where you4ve been cause we never meet again no one can return says the travellin4 man i don4t care who you were, we4re all growing old every moment4s a change say albert and the heart of gold
