He seems nice.
You met him once or twice
But you wonder what he's like
When he's sober.
Then again
You hear he has no friends
Just people that he spins
To do him favors.

When he wakes up in the morning he tells himself
"Today I'll make a change,"
But falling into his bed at night he thinks
"Man it was a beautiful day to stay the same."

I'm so deep
That only in my sleep
Do the secrets that I keep
Float to the surface.

So I hold them down
'Til they don't make a sound
Like they accidentally drowned
Except on purpose.

And when I wake up in the morning I tell myself
"Today I'll make a change,"
But falling into my bed at night I think
"Man it was a beautiful day to stay the same."
