"Tonight, You'll Blow It Again"

There's somebody whom took care for the lonely, the one you left behind the one who was there, when nobody else cared, about you.
As you're feeling your way through a life made of new days the kind you tried to forget each going faster wrapped in disaster, again.

Somewhere there is a life that's waiting to start you shine like a star
you shine for the first time brighter and brighter
nowhere is too far
you're starting to fade
you say for the first time
"I don't need you, I don't need you" but tonight, tonight, tonight, tonight you'll blow it again.

Sleepless and shaking my heart is breaking to know you'll never come back I slowly suspected we're barely connected, anymore.

Somewhere, there is a story that's waiting to end.
You shine like a star.
nowhere is too far.
You're starting to fade,
You shine like a star.
brighter and brighter
nowhere is too far

You started to fade
but tonight, tonight, tonight, tonight

you blow it again
you blow it again
you blow it again
you blow it again
