That's haunting my winter of dreams

In my dreams we still return
To summer fields where our love burned
In clover green where we once lay
Those were, my love, the brightest days

So like the wildflowers neath the ice
My heart is still, cold and quiet
As winter awaits the kiss of spring
I long for the warmth your touch would bring

But now the chill is in my bones
Like when you said you had to go
You took the love you gave to me
And left this long winter of dreams
