"Said And Done"

you see the mist above the water blinding all thats there to see you fell in love with natures daughter or the idea you see so many moments were made there the chance to say the perhaps to flee but when you taken what you wanted theres nothing left to see

she said shed wait for you as you closed her eyes
all the things we've said and done are not enough so run child run

and who alone knows what there doing in a place that seems surreal any fool can plan his ruin in a world thats down at heel and as the mist clears from the water will it give you second sight can you remember what your here for will you take it as your right

as you closed her eyes
