Fate will find a way for you
On golden wings or leaden shoes
All the way to the house our father knew

And this angry storm of slamming doors
And broken glass on hardwood floors
Wait for you in house our father knew

Don't you hear the deafening roar
Agan and again in a broken refrain
We're homeward bound, pulling by the sound of
History repeating

Gray monkey grass and granite stone
A bitter heart and frozen bones
Pave the way to the house our father knew

And every second chance to be free
Has come and gone and left a key
Left for you in the house our father knew

Don't you hear the deafening roar
Agan and again in a broken refrain
We're homeward bound, pulling by the sound of
History repeating

Only rooms
Stairways going nowhere
Let it be the house our father knew

Don't you hear the deafening roar
Agan and again in a broken refrain
We're homeward bound, pulling by the sound of
History repeating
