"Destination Day"

There was a totally different version of this on our first "Avenger" demo in '83, in fact only the chorus remains...

Read in the bible what's written there'll one day come true Âbout the end of the world an all life and all things that we knew.
The reaper is sharpening his scythe, this is the end of your body and day will be night.

The sun will fade its light away the good will go, the bad must stay.

On the destination day
when all life is blown away
on the destination day

there is no more use in praying.

Nuclear power will soon bring all mankind to fall they destroy all their land just for cash and they don't care at all.
Ashes to ashes dust to dust Your body is covered with lava, torn up from earth's crust.

The sea will overflow the land and you will die then hand in hand

On the destination day
when all life is blown away
on the destination day
when all life is blown away
on the destination day
there is no more use in praying.
