Faceless you remain to me but your actions did not go unseen

Do you think I'll ever forget that night
When you took my mother away from me?
The only woman I could trust
The only woman who understood who I really was

But I'm growing older and with each passing day
I learn the world gets colder,
And I learn everything that happens has a meaning,
has a purpose

God it's taken me years and years and years
To finally be able to say that I am over this I've lived for far too long in the shadows of my own
hatred
How can you forgive me if I can't even forgive myself?

I can only hope that I will get the chance
To tell you all of this
To tell you all of this, face to face
Face to face

I can only imagine the pain that you are going through Knowing of the grief and emptiness you put this family through
How could I be so selfish to think that I was the only one affected?
Just know that in my eyes you are forgiven
Just know you are forgiven

God it's taken me years and years and years
To finally be able to say that I am over this I've lived for far too long in the shadows of my own
hatred
How can you forgive me if I can't even forgive myself?
