She had a mannequin on the front porch in july she sold him coffees and cookies and a tea called time and the mannequin smiles, and the mannequin smiles and she don't know what to say and everythings ok and it's fine to be plain chorus:

If its just my body you want, my body you want; then come on and tell me
If it's just my body you want then come on and tell me, come on and tell me

Now, now, now lamentations, lamentations, what am i trying to say?
now, now, now complications, reputations, mannequins need some fame and the mannequins denial , the mannequins denial and she don't know what to crave she don't know what to praise as the mannequins say

chorus

Bridge:

(background) Ok, positions lasts forever it's going to be hard to pretend (background) Ok, we'll always be together its always so hard to be a mannequin (background) Ok

ok
I love you forever

(solo)

come on and tell me
if its just my body you want then come on and tell me, i would believe you cuz your just so damn vain but fuck i'm still tryin to impress you
