to all the awful things i never got to say well here they come and some are black and some are gray and white some don't have a color please don't wonder why cause i don't know

the seasons are changing once again my friends the seasons are changing once again, yet i stay the same
and i try, sometimes i get it right, and i try just not for you

by the way the desire to defend has taken bait and again it pleases me to see you clean ann well i can tell you've wiped it off your sleeve all i can hope now is the same thing happens to me

no reason to notice the way its back and forth and i wonder how i'll be and i wonder what i'll see cause the places that you said that we would get to go we we won't
