"Born Again"

Sit by the radio, tell me you want me
At ninety-nine now, tell me you love me

Sit by the phone now, whenever you're able
Ceramic figures, Christ in the stable

If you give now, you're born again
If you give now, you're born again

I have watched you, and I have loved you
I was just seventeen when I first touched you
You speak in tongues now, but I can hear you
Stigmata bleeding, but I don't fear you yet

If you give now, you're born again
If you give now, you're born again

Slip around my neck, my God
A bracelet is my baby
I can't imagine what I need
'Cept your devotion, baby
Fill me up with Jesus
And commemorative baby

And if I give a little more, then knock me down and save me

If you give now, you're born again
If you give now, you're born again

I'm a little unsure of some of the lyrics, which aren't available online so far as I can tell (Pity!) but this is my best effort based on repeated listenings to the song. If anyone can discern the true lyrics, please let me know and I will modify the lyrics accordingly.
