I heard it today
That you already have a new man
From you friends mouth, it was passed on How you were keeping company surprised me

You made the same present that you gave me
Adding a letter with the same content
Saying that this kind of love is a first for you, baby

Lay in the bed I laid in Giving the same look you once gave me
Split love with another person, how could you already forget me like this
I don't believe it, did you ever really love me
I still can't fathom loving again yet

Call him by the same nickname you called me Hold his hand at the places I took you to Like a person at a march for the first time, pretend to wait in anticipation
Those were all precious memories made with me
They'll all be erased if you do them with him too
Why are you erasing our memories, why why

Lay in the bed I laid in
Giving the same look you once gave me
Split love with another person, how could you already
forget me like this
I don't believe it, did you ever really love me
I still can't fathom loving again yet

The car I rode in
The chair I sat in
That person is standing in my place
The lips that once told me they loved me are now matching someone else's lips
