

Math and Physics Club

"Such a Simple Plan"

Visit "Such a Simple Plan" on MotoLyrics.com

She's finally alone
She never really thought about the consequences of falling in love
But she hides her eyes as the tears come tumbling out
The realization
It's such a simple plan
Turned to nothing in her hands
She said my heart may need a reduction
Maybe love should come with instructions

There must be something
There must be someone

Summer turned into June
She spent morning night and noon in a tiny room
Typing away to another sad romantic
She swears she won't become that girl at the park
Dark and negligible
She said I think that what I deserve
Is a night out on the town tonight

My heart may need a reduction
Maybe love should come with instructions
There must be something
There must be someone

It's such a simple plan
That turned to nothing in her hands

Another broken heart for Alison
She knows at least tonight she won't have to share the bed
She cries and reads herself to sleep instead
/]

Visit Math and Physics Club page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.