you remind me of someone
I don't know who
an old familiar face
maybe a lover
from my wilder youth or my mother in her younger days maybe in a former life I was a serviceman and you were my wife

I don't know who
maybe it's better that way
you remind me of someone
I don't know who
it's, uh, Georgia O'Keeffe, yeah in your desert of shape and hue bleached bones and silent grief the way you stare off into space and see only what you want to face
you remind me of someone
I don't know who
someone who's a lot like me did anybody ever tell you that you look a little like Mary Cassatt a mother and a child arranged, estranged a mere brush stroke apart while underneath your varnish hides an unpossessible soul

I don't know who
somebody who's so hard to know

I don't know who
maybe the ghost of things yet to come or the shining eyes of my daughter dear still waiting to be born or the loving gaze of Mother Earth still flirting with the universe

somebody I somebody I could learn to love
