Imprisoned inside this strange construction

Darkness is constant around me
I can sense but I cannot see
Something creeping along the walls
Something guarding the chamber doors

Withdrawn into this place
From all impressions safe
And yet fear escalates
Choking me in it's embrace

Disillusioned I entered here
In isolation ensnared
But a mind cannot be escaped
Nor the horrors it chose to shape

Self imprisoned in
Dispirited chambers
Where shadows form a circle strong
Where shadows whisper in unknown tongue

Every moment here feels like centuries
These chambers reek of tragedies

Suddenly I move towards the doors
Through sense not sight I keep this course

The shadows they come alive
Promising death's to arrive
But my sanity left here long ago
And I'm determined to follow

Selfcaged inside
Dispirited chambers
The key is the state of mind
Inside dispirited chambers
