

Ramona

"One Man For The Moonlite"

Visit "One Man For The Moonlite" on MotoLyrics.com sitting back from your mama's house passes on a lumber playing like cat and country mouse doctors and nurses in a teenage summer (teenage summer, teenage summer) whoa, whoa, whoa oh [Chorus:]

and to show me one face for the daytime one face for the night
one man for the moonlite
one man for the moonlite
and I'll show you one face for the daytime
one face for the night
one man for the moonlite
one man for the moonlite high tides, squealing, summer night hawking to the white lions shifting the gear and pulling out thown on the wind blew on a teenage summer (teenage summer, teenage summer)
whoa, whoa, whoa oh
[repeat chorus]
spinning tops and wedding clothes and a face that's left behind the boy who borrow, the boy who scold the trouble on his mind somebody said someone went dead in a somewhere way back when you are the man child
you are the moon child now [repeat chorus]
[guitar solo]
oh, somebody said someone went dead
in a somewhere way back when
you are the man child
you are the moon child now [repeat chorus]

Visit Ramona page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.
