She works in the diner for hard pay A picture of her daughter gets her through the day She's a pretty girl who never smiles She refills my coffee I've been here for a while Nail down the windows tight bring the dogs inside there's a storm building up behind building up behind you and me tonight everything will be all right just Close the door and shades stay with me sweetly I can't go away stay with me sweetly Like gravity on ankles and tired on eyes A dead weight strangles she's given up tonight Let the firelight warm your eyes dance with me barefoot tonight there's a storm building up behind building up
behind you and me tonight everything's gonna be all right just She works in the diner it's what it take She walks around barefoot dances through her breaks lost years of smiles replaced cut the rope dead weight A storm is about to break about to break the clouds in two for a full moon moon shining light on you
