So, tell me what it's really like
When it's alright, but it's just alright
I watch it get under your skin
You can't even say what it is

But I know it's not like when you made your peace
With your former life or your dirty sheets
Well, you're cleaner than you used to be
But everybody wants some company

So, tune it out like you always do
Just tell me now, would you tell the truth
Are you lonely, love?
Oh, and you're the waiting around for somebody to tell you
That it's only love
And that it's better just to let it beat you

So, tell me what it's all about
When you figure out that it's harder now
Out of touch, now you're out of tune
It's not forever, but I'm telling you
That I know love is a hate to bring home
Believe in yourself all alone
And you had to slow down for a while
It's always been out of your style

So, tune it out like you always do
Just tell me now, would you tell the truth
Are you lonely, love?
Oh, and you're just waiting around for somebody to tell
you
That it's only love
And that it's better just to let it beat you

I'm not, I'm not, I'm not, I'm not
I'm not, I'm not, I'm not, I'm not

Are you lonely, love?
Oh, and you're just waiting around for somebody to tell
you

That it's only love
And that it's better just to let it beat you

Are you lonely, love?
Oh, and you're just waiting around for somebody to tell
you
That it's only love
And that it's better just to let it beat you

Are you lonely, love?
Are you lonely, love?
Oh no, are you lonely, love?
Are you lonely?
