Heavy in my own heart, funny in my bones
Looking for a paycheck, everybody knows
Something about losing, something about sad
I'm tired of feeling homeless, tired of feeling bad
So I became a river, I became the sun
I became a moon ring, escaping on the run
And love began to hear me, love began to see
Gave to me a new life, helped me to my feet

And the rain won't bother me now, not me
No, the rain won't bother me now
The rain won't bother me now, not me
No, the rain won't bother me now

You know I'm not the only soldier, I'm not the only son
Turning and returning, I'm not the only one
In a battle I can lose here, and the battle's never done
God make me a raincoat
In a rainstorm knocking me around

And the rain won't bother me now, not me
No, the rain won't bother me now
No, the rain won't bother me now, not me
No, the rain won't bother me now

I think we just become each other
A mystery, in fact
Ready at the sunrise
Burning through the black
Nothing here is worthless
Nothing here is free
God make me a raincoat
When it's raining on me

And the rain won't bother me now, not me
No, the rain won't bother me now
And the pain don't bother me now, not me
No, the rain won't bother me now
