She's taking up the room in my head
Like all your rooms hook up with a bed
If you're happy with me and believe what I say
Be strong enough to let her walk away

Do you kiss her lips when you say goodbye?

And all of the people you've been with before
And the keys on the end of her ring fit your door
So I smile and I chat if I see her in town
Expect me to be her when the lights are turned down

Do you kiss her lips when you say goodbye?
Do you miss her hips when you hear me sigh?

Are you in her car when, I take the bus home?
Is she in your arms when, I walk alone?
Do you miss her hips when you hear me sigh?
Do you kiss her lips when you say goodbye?

And after all this I'm expected to like her
You lie to my face when you say you don't see her
To get my revenge I wanted to spike her
And laugh in her face when she's tripping with fear

When you say goodbye
When you say goodbye
(She's tripping with fear)

When you say goodbye
When you say goodbye
(She's tripping with fear)

When you say goodbye
When you say goodbye
(She's tripping with fear)

When you say goodbye
When you say goodbye
When you say goodbye
When you say goodbye
