"If A Kid"

Wait For the show, he'll make the pensioners dance for you.

No one should know self-worship will kill them all.

But if a kid was king tonight, shaking his crown,
All the teddies would be kneeling down, tonight.

Brothers! The missing crown will never joke. He waits alone. A warship is warming up.
On covers he rides 'til the light turn on. No one should know the beetles are waking up.

But if a kid was king tonight, shaking his crown,
All the teddies would be kneeling down, tonight.

Midnight is ringing out over the kingdom. A party begins behind the eyelids.
Under the beds beetles are walking to march to castles.
