"Please Stop Me"

The mirror catches everything in lovely shades of red
Pools of scarlet running from the hollows of her bed
She said she'd never hurt me, as I locked the door
Please stop me, before I kill more

I've been trying to wake up from a dream that's lasted years]
Tonight I fell forever through a dream that ended here Someone come and pick me up from the pieces on the floor
Please stop me, before I kill more

One day a rain will come and wash the streets all clean
But until that rain appears, the job is mine it seems They're looking for me, everywhere, but I don't know what for
Please stop me, before I kill more

I try to catch my mind, but it leaves me like before
Please stop me, before I kill more
Please stop me, before I kill more
Please stop me
