Don't be fooled by appearances,
It only shows what the world already knows Don't rely on the physical evidence Of what the x-ray pictures show Because inside every straight upright citizen a tormented Emotionally impaired psychologically damaged personality resides And beside every crooked man stands an angel with wings
And the spirit can do truly wonderful things

As I watch the hump-backed man hobble down the high street
I say a silent prayer for myself
I was taken to the local doctor
For a consultation about my physical health I heard him ask about my family - history "You see, Mrs. Davies, it might be hereditary. Yes it might"
Maybe think about my family, 'cause socially could be
"You were a physical deformity"

'Cos the world only sees what it believes and is revealed in the x-ray
It only knows what it knows, photographs, video and the printed word
Yes/But there is more in this heaven on earth
Than (what)/(what those scientists now and) is revealed
on/in the x-ray

Ev'ry morning I got up and looked in the mirror to see if the hump had Appeared on my back. To my disappointment I was not a freak.
You see, maybe there'd be side benefits to become in a cripple,
Side benefits like priority seating at football matches.
And I thought
"If I'm gonna be a cripple, I'll go all the way"

They could photograph reality,

But they can't picture your fantasy
'Cos the world only sees what it believes and is
revealed in the x-ray
It only knows what it knows, photographs, video and
the printed word
Than (what)/(what those scientists now and) is revealed
on/in the x-ray

'Cos the world only sees what it believes and is
revealed in the x-ray
It only knows what it knows, photographs, video and
the printed word
Than (what)/(what those scientists now and) is revealed
on/in the x-ray
