We've got our drink, and we got our pill.
Teach us what to think, while you've got us sitting still.
We do whatever it takes to get that dollar bill.
Can you see the price tags hanging from our free will?
Well you will.

Was there something more that I was supposed to be,
than an indentured servant shackled to my T.V.?
I've been waiting patiently for somebody to set me
free,
never realizing somebody is me, or that I was somebody.

What if somebody came along with a key,
and gave us the chance to set ourselves free,
then generously pointed in the right direction.
Would that just make us angry?
Perpetuate our misery?
Would you sit there idly,
or stand up and run
to be free?

Was there something more that I was supposed to be,
than slave to fantasy living vicariously?
I've been waiting patiently for somebody to set me
free,
never realizing somebody is me, or that I was
somebody.
