This broken heart of mine will recover
these open wounds of mine well one day they shall heal and I shall recover these broken dreams, my shaking knees a cool cool breeze will take it all away and this broken heart of mine will recover

These blinded eyes of mine well one day they shall see it all more clear than now and the rain comes down to wash away all of my fears And the moments will be remembered as moments The days and the nights, the minutes and seconds and all of this will become so little and I I will recover

'Cause these broken arms of mine will find a way of reaching out again
And these broken words of mine well one day they will all make sense one day they will all make sense
And the way that I feel and the memories that I keep all lost in the things that I dream when I sleep Well I know not the time and I know not the way
But I, I will recover

This broken heart of mine
will be strong again And in an littel while I'll stand on my own two feet again And I know it takes time so I'll try to be patient but I wait on the day that I know I can say This broken heart of mine has recovered

'Cause these broken arms of mine will find a way of
reaching out again
And these broken words of mine
well one day they will all make sense
one day they will all make sense

And the way that I feel
and the memories that I keep
all lost in the things that I dream when I sleep Well I know not the time and I know not the way
But I, I will recover

This broken heart of mine
these open wounds of mine
well one day they shall heal and I shall recover
these broken dreams, my shaking knees
a cool cool breeze will take it all away
and this broken heart of mine will recover

I will recover
