I want to go back to the sea
and swim around with my family.
The waters cool and so are we.
Our bodies soft and rubbery.

I wish to go away from here.
Back to the place I held so dear.
I hear the call all through the years.
Back to the form I once was.

I want to go back to the sea
and swim around with my family.
The waters cool and so are we.
Our bodies soft and rubbery.

And so I humbly take my leave.
But leave behind my sanity
and turn my head not once to see
I'm bold and young and dumb and free.
