oh baby oooohhhh,, woah oh noooooo. oh oh oh. 6th grade i told you to leave me laughin i don't think so i'll passin around the room, but i just don't see you. you are the inside outside ipidamy of what looks like to be a rebel on the bathroom floor, it's fun it's quick, just take it, take it sloooooow. and dont you think about the show, that chapters gone,you smoked it out and out into the door. woah woah, so when you come back down, you know that i'll be waiting for you. i only hope that you wont forget my name. my nay-haayme. break down to 3rd street and how we'd scream, they kept this song, they kept us crazy, kept this clean. but now we're in a different scene. see one stays away when the others a dreeeeeeaam. with the level of incompatince and the look in your eye, the look in your eye is split. hes awake and hes breathin i'm awake and your chest is heaving heaving, now i'm leaving, leaving. if you can speak up with your tounge tied, untied. first you got to pray, everyone here its too late, everyone is in touch, everyone is a fake like. so when you come back down, you know that i'll be waiting for you. i only hope that you won't forget my name. the keys alive will watch you shake, their hearts at stake.
