[Sample from Sing-A-Song]

"You can come, I'll leap right over

Any day you like

System 605, Union 91"

[Aesop]

I forever wallow in glitches grimly distributed by side effects

Consumed, cocooned in antisocial trenches

Drenched! Gridled between dense pillars of polar value lies a grey so blueless it's got eye fiendin for the sky

Synthesized lies rise synthetic

Sittin inside solidified plastics who's latteral burns germ compatible

My firm's radically piloted, dodging a fire swiftly

Yellow brick stalker walking shifty

Odd, but a prototype metroid programmed to holocaust style

while you're soakin in the stages of denial

Your petty soldiers seem fragile like Jaquemetti sculptures

Embedded in Paramedic cultures. We's rock steady vultures

Plus I's the guise of rowin a soul

My wingspan stands flags in the snow of the poles

Bezerk

Swerve my alignment towards solitary confinement and jade it

Stripping, color my passion mitigated

Slipping

[Ann Colville]

You always seem like a small grey cat to me

Sleepin underneath the silvery moon

Paws curled beneath your head

'til the sun came round just around noon

And you would greet me, purring in your doorway

Drawn at your tail around my hips

And I would go to your mouth wide open waitin for my nourish to come from your lips

And I move you
And you like it
Just enough
To let me
But I hate you
Cause you're lonely
And you know how
To forget me

[Aesop]

For the love of my personal practice I reside where obstructive fluxes and societal withdrawl collides
Slide fuel by the fury
Spun a ring around my honor
but the opulence took shelter in my horror
Melancholy masquerade
Cast amongst the braiding of biligerence and blazing terror that blew the lock down off my placement
I stay special agent till the sky falls
Reverse the curse till my fellow lost children disperse

[Ann Colville]

And your footsteps leading down the pathway never seem to be quite like my own Your mind is walking circles it blinded me till I turned towards home
And you would watch me far in the distance hands held high above your head
I wanna lay in the territory where there's nothing left, to be said
And I move you
Just enough
To let me
But I hate you
Cause you're lonely
And you know how
To forget me

[Sample from Sing-A-Song]

"You can come, I'll leap right over"

[Aesop]

I make music and connect color to canvas
Swoop down from the trees with potpourris and other bandits
Landed randomly upon the valleys of the grimace Saw my planted leaf stars burnin from the oustide in Meaning your clout lies thin

Salt prep the blades prior to five phase in my ever changin underworld
Serate a day to decorate a traitor
That sting never fades like belly wounds from sling blades
Follow my portion, I keep swallowin cigarettes to the filter

[Sample (Sing-A-Song High Tone Voice)]

"You can come, I'll leap right over
Any day you like
