Don't you knock at my door
Don't you knock at my door

You can give your love to another man
You can break my hearts like before
You can make me cry till eye runs dry
But don't you knock at my door

You can wave to me from your window
And call me names like before
You can throw yourself down at my feet
But don't you knock at my door

This beating of my poor heart tells me
You're ready to start again
But this time, it won't easy
Well, if you knock at my door
You have to break it in

You can send me pretty letters
With love forever more
You can give me a ring on the telephone
But don't you knock at my door

This beating of my poor heart tells me
You're ready to start again
But this time, it won't easy
Well, if you knock at my door
You have to break it in

You can send me pretty letters
With love forever more
You can give me a ring on the telephone
But don't you knock at my door
But don't you knock at my door
But don't you knock at my door
