You don't say how you love him
but it shows in every word,
When he played his favorite music was the best you'd ever heard, you tell me that he couldn't watch,
The violence cut by men
when all is quiet throughout the land,
I hope you'll meet again.

I hope you'll meet again.
I hope you'll meet again.

His feelings were as deep for you and maybe even more, Though he probably didn't show it you knew his heart was sure,
And though he left without a single word
it was better in the end,
There are no words to say goodbye
I hope you'll meet again.

I hope you'll meet again.
I hope you'll meet again.

I never even met him but I knew we'd be a pair we'd have sat down in any pub in town and had a good time there but there's something there between us stands in both our way's when all these things are sorted out
I hope you'll meet someday

I hope you'll meet someday.
I hope you'll meet someday.

You tell me of his interests how he loved the sound of trains, Whenever you hear that whistle

it's calling out his name,
All the lonely years you suffered remembering back when,
The days seemed so much longer
I hope you'll meet again.

I hope you'll meet again.
I hope you'll meet again.
I hope you'll meet again.
I hope you'll meet again.
