She's leaving today what could I say
My Lord how I miss her
I'm sitting alone, healing my wounds
And the treetops they whisper
Isn't it easy to say, I'll go my way
Am I the first one to pray that she will stay
There's nothing to do I'm turning blue
My whole world is falling
No reason to fear though I can hear
The future is calling
Isn't it easy to say, I'll go my way
Am I the first one to pray that she will stay
See how how lonely I'm growing no one can be like you
I walk slowing in morning crying is all to do
She's leaving today what could I say
My Lord how I miss her
I'm sitting alone, healing my wounds
And the treetops they whisper
Isn't it easy to say, I'll go my way
Am I the first one to pray that she will stay
See how how lonely I'm growing no one can be like you
I walk slowing in morning crying is all to do
