There's my favorite rollercoaster,
next to the blue water:
the one only sissies ride.
There's the sun
going down,
creating that florescent glow.
Reminding me I'll never be able
to relive this day,
except in memory.

There's those big barking fish
in the concrete stream, growling for dog food.
Bulging dead eyes that gleam,
but where's dad?
And where is mom?
Looks like from here on out
it's just me and you.
Looks like from here on
out, it's just me and you.
