baylasan is the flowers thrown at the wedding ceremonies they cover the forest with their shadow like the rain,they keep knocking on my doors,on my doors oh lifetime oh herbs hanging on these walls you enlightened the night flowers on my book the pigeons towel is fenced and high, the pigeons has emigrated and i stayed alone alone oh people who waits for snow you no longer wants to go back ,scream at them in the winter oh wolf

,may be they obey

they stay alone like this old cloud,alone ,their faces and the darkness of the road they're crossing the forest with their hands like the rain knocking the crying while they're waiting on my doors

oh lifetime that planted these hanging herbs on the walls before the trees are high enlight the lamps and wait for my friends they passed by ,they're gone ,i stayed on my door alone oh people who goes with snow ,you no longer wants to go back ,scream at them in the winter oh wolf ,may be they obey
