

The Smashing Pumpkins

"Porcelina Of The Vast Ocean"

Visit "Porcelina Of The Vast Ocean" on MotoLyrics.com

I fear that I am ordinary, just like everyone
To lie here and die among the sorrows
Drift along the days
For everything I ever said And everything I've ever done is gone and dead

As all things must surely have to end And great loves will one day have to part
I know that I'm not ment for this world

My live's been extraordinary
Blessed and cursed and won's
Time heals but I'm forever broken By and by the way....
Have you ever heard the words I'm singing in this song?
It for the one I've waited all along
Can a taste of love be so wrong?

As all things must surely have to end And great loves
will one day have to part
I know that I'm not ment for this world

And in my mind as I was floating Far above the clouds
Some children laughed I'd fall for certain
For thinking that I'd last forever
But I knew exactly where I was
And I knew the meaning of it all
And I knew the distance to the sun
And I knew the echo that is love
And I knew the secrets in your spires
And I knew the emptiness of youth
And I knew the solitude of hearts
And I knew the murmurs of the soul

And the world is drawn into your hands
And the world is ethed upon your heart
And the world so hard to understand
Is the world you can't live without

'Cause I knew the silence of the world

