what's our mission
do we know
would never listen
for too long
they held me under
but out here
it's almost over
in detroit
on our memphis train
like you said

it's down in the heat and the summer rain of the automatic galls of your memories down in the sleep at the airplane races

try to hold on
for this heart
a little bit longer
try to hold on
for this love
alone
try to hold on
for this heart
a little bit colder
try to hold on

paperback scroll your hidden poem written around the dried out flowers here we are still trading places
try to hold on

poptart
can you envision
a free world
of clear division

they held us under
but i know
we're getting over
in detroit
with the nashville tears

it's down in the heat with the broken numbers down in the gaze of solemnity down in the way you held together

you try to hold on
to this heart
a little bit closer
try to hold on
a little bit older

and no one should deny
we try to hold on to the pulse of a feedback car and into the flower, the cryptic movement slipback kills the ancient remnants that try to hold on

alive
to this love
alone
and we are still alone

poptart
you never listen
skin me

stop stop
