I wish life was a game that I could learn to play
Oh Lord please teach me how
And if everything's the same, I try not to stay the same
In a moment I could change
I'm wishing for boardwalk
I can't trap that mouse
Would I cheat if I wanted to win?
I'm already dead
If life could be a puzzle
When we make the pieces fit
It would look all right and we'd be okay with it
And as our eyes enlarge we'd pick a winning card
Like it matters anyway
It's just a game
If life was a game, so easy to play
Just throw the dice without throwing your life away
Take a chance here, take a chance there
Start again from the beginning
No consequences
