You haven't seen this world.
You haven't heard a word.
And it's here you want to come?
Yes old man.
I will relieve you of your work and
of all that you have done.
( Intermezzo )

Virgin, now my time has come.
In a few minutes I will be gone.
Here take this golden ring.
Goodbye old man. Sleep well.
There's nothing more to tell.
Did you know your ring can sing?

Chorus:
This is just the last song
of the last one-thousand years
And we can go on
If we learn what we've done wrong
This is just the last song
of the last one-thousand years
And only a second
Changes a millennium

The old man is making his way back
To his empty bed.
And soon closes his eyes.
I hope when he sleeps
he will never wake up
And come back
And tell a thousand lies.

Chorus:
This should be the last song
of the last one-thousand years
And we can go on
If we learn what we've done wrong
This is just the last song
of the last one-thousand years

And only a second
Changes a millenium
