If I had a dollar bill for every time I've been wrong I'd be a self-made millionaire and you'd still be gone so hand me down my dress shoes and my best dress shirt cause I'm going down in style to cover the hurt.

all I wanna do all day is spend it in bed but that's bad for the body and even worse for my head so I'll try and find a place where no one will ask me a thing it will help me to forget and help me to say cause now I'm drunk again a means to my end

and I'm scared of myself
cause now it's all the same,
the places and names
and I'm scared of myself again.

have you ever wanted to wake up from your dreaming it scared you so bad you couldn't you control your heart or your breathing. well walk out the door with me on the floor you don't care how I'm feeling I guess a weak and tired and frightened man is no longer appealing.

cause now, I'm drunk again
a means to my end,
cause now it's all the same
and I'm scared of myself again.

some people have a gift of reaching right into your soul and finding the hole and making it bigger there are sometimes I think I catch you cracking cynical smiles and in a short while you'll be my hearts grave digger. well there's not much I can do cause i'm at the mercy of you so baby i guess we're through oh

the means to my end
and i'm scared of myself
cause now it's all the same

so go walk out the door you don't believe me no more
and i'm scared of myself again.
again.

if i had a dollar bill for every time i'd been wrong i'd be a self-made millionaire and i wouldn't be singing.
