Every story, tale or memoir
Every saga or romance
Whether true or fabricated
Whether planned or happenstance
Whether sweeping through the ages
Casting centuries aside
Or a hurried brief recital
Just a thirty-minute ride

Whether bright or melancholy
Rough and ready, finally styled
Whether with a thousand players
Or a lonely cast of one

Every story new or ancient
Bagatelle, or work of art
All are tales of human failing
All are tales of love at heart

This is the story of love that flourished in a time of hate
Of lovers no tyranny could separate
Love set into motion on the Nile's shore
Destiny ignited by an act of war

Egypt saw the mighty river
As its very heart and soul
Source of life for all the people
That only Egypt could control
Destruction of a southern neighbor justified
Nubia exploited, left with little more than pride
