Sit and watch the colors bleed
They run together, it helps remind me
To slow down before this is forgotten once again
But it got me by another day

So I run until it comes time to awake
I realize that this could all have been just a dream
Have I painted this picture, its all in my head
Now imagine yourself waking to find its only begun

How does it feel to be so free, no expectations
Only wish that was me
To be able to enjoy this, and forget what lies ahead
Nothing else should matter, I can only hope

So I run until it comes time to awake
I realize that this could all have been just a dream
Have I painted this picture, its all in my head
Now imagine yourself waking to find its only begun

So I run until it comes time to awake
I realize that this could all have been just a dream
Have I painted this picture, its all in my head
Now imagine yourself waking to find its only begun
