She never really ever wanted him to stay
He only really ever wanted her to play
The games he threw her way day after day
She though she could
but then again
Maybe she misunderstood
But then again
But then again

He never really ever thought he could quit
She tried to see what she could get out of it
They weren't at all a perfect fit, until they split.
He thought he could love her
But then again
She had blown his cover
But then again
But then again

They both had
A few tricks up their sleeves
They both reached a stalemate to see which one of them
Would be the first to win or first one to leave

They thought they could
But then again
Maybe they misunderstood
But then again
Now they're both alone
But then again
They just can't stop reaching for the phone
But then again
But then again
But then again
But then again
